

Accept responsibility for the consequences of your choices; think before you act and consider how others will be affected by your actions; don't make excuses, blame others for your mistakes or take credit for others' achievements; set a good example for others at all times; exercise self-discipline.